

Teammate: Can I share my screen?

You: Yes.

You: I'm drawn to the color palette and the character system. The color coding on the right works well. One idea: make the four pairs (E/I, S/N, T/F, J/P) more distinct—increase contrast so users can quickly understand the differences. Keep the existing color coding consistent across pages.

You: I like the left-side color system with the beige/brown contrast. Repeating that structure on other pages would be good.

Teammate: Should I add a navigation bar? I was thinking a “Learn more” button on the Home page that leads to the Personality Types page. Maybe a header with Home + Personality Types to move back and forth.

You: That works for desktop. For mobile, consider a menu where tapping the logo/menu opens links to the four pairs and the 16 personalities. Instead of cramming personalities on the right, give each personality its own page. From the Types page, tap a card → go to that type detail; provide a Back button.

Teammate: So 16 separate pages?

You: Yes—keep the grid pattern; it scales well for the Types page.

Teammate: With nav, that's 18 pages total (Home, Types, plus 16 detail pages).

You: Nav should just list Home and Personality Types. From Types, click through to detail pages and back.

You: Use colors closer to 16personalities for consistency. Their site is helpful for references (color blocks, system). The official one is 16personalities.com.

Teammate: Great—I'll align colors and maybe take the test to feel the flow.

You: Perfect. Text anytime with questions.

TODO:

- Keep the playful concept (characters + color coding) from the second mockup.
- Use a clear, simple nav (Home ↔ Personality Types). From the Personality Types grid, each of the 16 types gets its own page with a Back to Types pattern.
- Desktop keeps the left color panel/character treatment; mobile breaks content into simpler, stacked sections (avoid cramming all 16 on one long panel).
- Adopt the official 16 Personalities color palette (or very close) for consistency and recognition.
- Add a “Learn more” CTA on the home page to reach the type grid.